The study was conducted to identify the factors influencing school attendance of grade 12 students in General Emilio Aguinaldo National High School – Bailen in the School Year 2018-2019. A total of 85 grade 12 students participated in this study from the total population of 109 students.

Exploratory method of quantitative research was used to deeply analyze and explore the various factors that influence school attendance of grade 12 students. The major tool used in data gathering was researchers-made questionnaire which has two sections.

The statistical treatments used after the data had been gathered are frequency and percentage distribution, weighted mean, z-test: two sample for means and one -way analysis of variance (ANOVA).

The study revealed the various factors affecting the selected grade-12 students to attend class regularly. These includes the desire to finish studies in order to help the family in the future, willingness to learn, teachers' strategies in teaching, the relationship with classmates and support from the family which include financials and moral support. Moreover, it was shown that there is no significant differences between student-respondents' school attendance when grouped according to their gender. On the other hand, significant differences were found between student-respondents' school attendance when grouped according to their socio-economic status. This paper also presented the recommendations made by the researchers to mitigate the poor attendance of the students.
